Repository	Archives The John and Mable Ringling Museum of Art 5401 Bay Shore Road Sarasota, Florida 34243 archives@ringling.org
Creator	Tibbals, Howard C., 1936 – 2022
Title	Tibbals Circus Collection of Tickets, Passes and Coupons
Dates	1826 - 2009
Physical Description	8 linear feet
Physical Description	6745 items
Language	English, French, German, Spanish
Arrangement	Alphabetical order by name of circus followed by chronological order.
Summary	This collection holds a treasure trove of eloquent, but often humble tickets, passes and coupons to circuses and sideshows, fairs, minstrel shows, carnivals, railways, expositions, exhibitions, concerts, excursions, zoos and spectacles. Many have survived over the course of nearly two hundred years holding documentation of these events. True to the notion of ephemera, these items were intended to have a fleeting lifespan, and in most cases, pass between individuals with little fanfare. Admission tickets generally bear the word "Admit" accompanied by a number or space or name or names. An admission ticket is normally distinguished from a ticket received at the time of entry as a receipt for payment. It is essentially a document of advance engagement. This collection holds tickets with seating information specifying one seat or chair, general admission, reserved seating, preferred seating, arena floor, grandstand, and balcony seating or a ride. And, tickets that stipulate: admit one; admit two; working boy; water boy; boy; girl; a child, 2 or more children; special school children; high school; circus daddy; driver; trainmaster; guest; adult; family; helper; bill poster; worker; press; extra help; door check or sponsorship. There are admission; advance sale, courtesy, complimentary, souvenir, contest, excursion, lithograph order, exchange, requisition, half price and discount tickets as well as those to see the animals and to kiss the elephant. Employee tickets include those for the annex, circus railway mileage, meals, commissary, parking, opening day banquet and lot access. The majority of the collection consists of full tickets as opposed to ticket stubs. There are ticket books and rolls of tickets as well.

Passes include those for complimentary single seating, or for providing annual, season, or lifetime access. Single seating passes stipulate those for a band member, roustabout, news boy, press-radio-tv, advertisers, special industry and rental exchange, and local officials. Employee and performer passes provide access to the backyard, a performance, lot and wagons and may be specified by department.

Tibbals Circus Collection of Tickets, Passes and Coupons

Historical Note

Tickets are a type of a receipt. They are used to entitle the holder to a service such as entertainment or transportation or they can be a record of a transaction.

Metal tokens remain from ancient Rome. Subsequent tickets have been made of ivory, semi precious metals and beginning in the 18th century forward tickets have been printed on paper, card stock or paste board.

Admission tickets are generally, those that have the word admit printed on them along with a number or a space or name or names. Admission tickets are different than tickets that are received as a receipt for a service. According to Maurice Rickards, they are document of upcoming ceremonial events such as a coronation or wedding as well as concerts, entrance to exhibitions, zoos, and other places of interest and entertainment.¹ Tickets come in many forms, from elaborate to simple. They are ephemeral in nature, generally being torn in half to prevent their reuse. Passes provide privileged access and are associated with the implication of special exception.²

In the late 19th century, coupons were used as a marketing tool to create and maintain product mass demand. As an inducement scheme, consumers were rewarded for their product loyalty with a coupon. Coupon gifts were designed to be collected and later exchanged by patrons for a “present.” This practice originated in 1851 by soap maker Benjamin Babbitt of New York.

The Tibbals Ticket, Pass, and Coupon Collection is predominately a collection of circus ephemera. Admission tickets are the greatest portion of the collection. There are tickets with seating information specifying one seat or chair, general admission, reserved seating, preferred seating, arena floor, grandstand, and balcony seating or a ride. And, tickets that stipulate who the ticket is for: admit one; admit two; working boy; water boy; boy; girl; a child, 2 or more children; special school children; high school; circus daddy; driver; trainmaster; guest; adult; family; helper; bill poster; worker; press; extra help; door check or sponsorship. There are admission; advance sale, courtesy, complimentary, souvenir, contest, excursion, lithograph order, half price and discount tickets as well as those to see the animals and to kiss the elephant. Employee tickets include those for the annex, circus railway mileage, meals, commissary, parking, opening day banquet and lot access.

The majority of the collection consists of full tickets as opposed to ticket stubs. There are ticket books and rolls of tickets as well.

Passes include those for complimentary single seating, or for providing annual, season, or lifetime access. Single seating passes stipulate those for a band member, roustabout, news boy, press-radio-tv, advertisers, special industry and rental exchange, and local officials. Employee and performer passes provide access to the backyard, a performance, lot and wagons and may be specified by department. Press, canvas, and wagon department passes are signed by a department representatives to be valid for use.

There are a scant number of coupons for exchange, discounts and children. The majority of this collection is printed on paper or card stock with exceptions for those printed on metal and cloth. This collection is in a sundry of shapes and sizes.
